

Journey of Young Women ~ Katharine Krueger

Watch out for the Crone.

She's on the dance floor.

As a maiden, her dreams were daring, lyrical, innocent, fierce, passionate & big. She sourced them from a deep place. And plunged into adulthood.

As a woman, she lived life up close ~ like a warrior. She fully engaged with life, vital & enthused ~ she let life hone her. Life for her meant being distilled, clarified, burnished & perfected.

Her mid-life was lived deeply in healing and owning herself back. In a smooth transition, the woman birthed the crone.

And now, as the crone, she's birthing herself as the new divine human. Her fully lived life has matured her vessel into pure gold.

She's the wine cup that can hold the new reality that is simultaneously transcendent & immanent. Her container is fully equipped to hold the play of light & dark.

She's not into 'looking good' at all. She feels good in her bones. She's deeply at peace.

She's pared her life down to the essentials. She's dropped her stories, & so she's never distracted.

She conserves her energy in a no-nonsense way. With her full-blown shakti, she's equipped to take on the world. And she's doing just that. From dreamer to seer, from warrior to co-creator, she's the one who's got it all together.

She's the new human consciousness. What she's holding in her DNA is what the world needs now.

Look out for her leadership. As the crone, she's no longer producing the egg. She IS the egg.

Do you know one such?
